Harvest Picnic at Hanging Rock Surround yourself with friends, music and Victoria's top producers

Enjoy the final days of summer this Sunday with good friends, great company and tantalising offerings at The Age Harvest Picnic at Hanging Rock. Highlighting the best of Victorian produce, there will be more than 100 producers on hand, allowing you to sample plenty of excellent food and wine while soaking up good vibes from the live entertainment.

Think of this as a the ultimate farmers' market, where you can also take in the amazing surrounds of Hanging Rock, lose yourself in the serene bushland and pick from gourmet morsels like home-grown shiitake mushrooms. Don't forget the picnic rug and bring extra carry bags for stocking up on wine, fresh coffee beans and even just-caught crayfish.

Sweet-tooths will certainly beeline for the decadent options, from artisan ice-cream to French desserts, while those watching their midriffs can relish in savoury plates – maybe Spanish or Mediterranean fare – and forage for Australian fruit and veg.

Keen cooks will want to pick up culinary tricks from Mildura's favourite son, Italian chef Stefano de Pieri, as well as Hellenic Republic chef Travis McAuley, both of whom will hold cooking demonstrations throughout the day. Then polish off the food fiesta with chocolate sessions with Koko Black chocolatier Grant Inches, who's pairing his creations with local dessert wines.

Admission includes entry to the picnic and the Neff Cooking Demonstration Marquee, free car parking, and access to Hanging Rock Reserve.

So come celebrate 22 years of championing Victoria's farmers and lose yourself before the work week starts again. And if you find that you're, well, hanging to return to this slice of country bliss, stay tuned for Agenda's hand-picked weekend itinerary for the Macedon / Kyneton region.
