

Client: Harvest Picnic Foundation

Media outlet: The Age website

Date: 28 February 2011

Pg: Melbourne Life news

Circulation: TBC

Warm spirit at soggy picnic yet pizza bid can't deliver

Adam Carey
February 28, 2011

Join the conversation

You're the only person reading this now. Tell your friends

Tweet 3

Top National articles

1. Middle Park shooting victim was top racing identity
2. Grim task to retrieve lost diver Agnes
3. Cave-dive tragedy: Victorian woman's body found
4. Coalition will roll back carbon tax: Abbott
5. Expert attacks 'healthy' food tick

+ More National articles

Story Tools

- Share on Facebook
- Email this story
- Print this story
- Reprints & permissions

The Age Jobs

Amanda Shea, Kate Kirby and Gavin Pereira at The Age's Harvest Picnic. Photo: Pat Scala

ABOUT 2000 intrepid gourmets braved inclement weather to partake in The Age's Harvest Picnic at Hanging Rock.

There were cooking demonstrations, live music and the chance to sample the wares from some of the state's finest boutique producers, including Gundowing Ice Cream from the Kiewa Valley and Scotchmans Hill wine from the Bellarine Peninsula.

But nobody found Miranda.